

NINTH ARMY AGAIN POISED AT ROER RIVER

One Thousand Miles of Doom for Germany

Map above shows how Red Army, through 1942, '43 and '44 gradually beat back the German Wehrmacht to the point where 1945 brought the start of Russia's "Win the War" offensive.

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie AP War Analyst

One of the hot spots of the moment in the battle of Germany is the beleaguered Silesian industrial center of Breslau since the Hitlerites' ability to make a strong stand on the Oder river line of defense depends heavily on continued possession of this great city.

Breslau, which sprawls astride the Oder, is the most important communications center of that part of the Reich, and it's the key position—the anchor—in the right flank of the line upon which the Nazis are depending to halt the rush of the Red army. Its fall would be a major disaster for the defenders. Word from Moscow is that all direct communications with the city have been cut, which would indicate that it has been virtually isolated.

Thus far we haven't had an answer to the hotly debated question of whether the Germans will be able to make a fight of it along the level valley of the winding Oder. This is their determination, of course, but they haven't paused in their retreat for a big-scale fight.

That's a highly significant point. We shouldn't overlook that in running away the Hitlerites may have ensured their ability to fight another day. Had they tried to dispute the strong points in the Polish plain with the mighty force which Russia was hurling at them, they certainly would have courted disaster. The Red army, flushed with victory and its own vast strength, would have torn them to ribbons.

But the Germans didn't attempt in a big way to halt this onslaught. They headed for their home grounds and the result may be that they have arrived in fairly good shape—in any event much stronger than they would have been if they had tried to fight it out in Poland, thereby giving the Muscovites exactly the chance the Red command was looking for—to catch the Nazis in open battle and annihilate them.

Then there's another aspect to this thought. Both sides undoubtedly are breathing a bit hard after the long, swift charge across the winter bound fields of Poland. This is calculated to give the Nazis some advantage, since they are tumbling into their prepared line for defense, while the Russians may soon want to slow up for a slight breather, especially since their communications are now greatly extended. However, only time will tell, for the season of the red forces is one of the wonders of the war.

This naturally is the precise moment when a heavy offensive by the western Allies would put a knife between Hitler's ribs and turn it

COAL LIMITED TO TON LOADS

Critical Shortages Result In Order From Washington

Ohio's coal shortage grew swiftly more acute today (Friday), as the government clamped rigid restrictions on deliveries of fuel to homes and recommended the closing of schools, and other public buildings to conserve supplies.

Thermometers dropped to five below here this morning.

C. J. Potter, deputy solid fuels administrator, telegraphed officials of communities in Ohio and 15 other states that he was limiting retail coal yards to one-ton deliveries per family, and then only when "such customer has on hand a five-day or less supply of usable fuel."

The order was necessary, Potter's telegram said, because of a three-day embargo on all rail freight shipments except war goods.

Ezra Van Horn, executive vice president of the Ohio Coal association said at Cleveland the embargo would "close all the mines Saturday and Sunday." Mines do not work Sunday.

Potter's order also recommended closing schools, libraries, museums, and other semi-public buildings "where closing would not endanger public health."

War production was crippled in a score of plants by the coal shortage, in the midst of a prolonged cold wave.

The current cold wave retained its grip on Ohio today, crippling war production in more than a score of plants and further reducing coal supplies in the almost barren bins of many households.

Col. E. A. Lynn, Cleveland district army ordnance chief appealed to residence consumers to cut consumption of natural gas to a minimum as war plants in scattered sections of the state were forced to curtail or halt operations.

The ordnance chief said operations curtailed were "close to the brackets of plants manufacturing emergency urgent class of war materials."

He listed this group as those producing artillery, heavy artillery, ammunition, trucks and tire parts and explained that a slight reduction in home gas consumption would result in a sufficient supply to keep the plants operating continuously.

Rescue Party Sets Out To Save Twins After Mother Dies

EAST PALESTINE, Jan. 26.—A rescue party set out today to reach the Columbiana county farmhouse where, isolated by snow-clogged roads for two weeks, Mrs. Ralph Burson died last night, an hour after giving birth to twins.

Dr. A. S. Atchison reported he traveled four hours by tractor and on foot yesterday to reach the Burson farm, six miles northwest of here.

He delivered the twins at 4 p.m. and returned to East Palestine. When he made a second trip last night, he said he found Mrs. Burson had died an hour after the twins were born.

Robert Henry, Columbiana county Red Cross director, headed the rescue party. Deputy Sheriff Howard Clark made arrangements for a county snow plow to clear a path to the lonely lane past the Burson home.

CED COMMITTEE MAPS PROGRAM

Officials Plan Activities For Columbiana County Cities

A meeting of the executive and advisory committees of Columbiana county's Committee for Economic Development, headed by County Chairman G. R. Deming of Salem, was held last night in the office of Mayor Cecil Rauch in Lisbon to formulate activities in the various communities throughout the county.

Deming reviewed the underlying purposes and principles of the CED organization and discussed plans to be carried out in the county within the next month.

Pointing out that CED, an organization composed entirely of private individuals and in no way connected with the government, is primarily concerned with whether or not industry, agriculture and commerce can supply enough jobs for all the people who want work after the war, Deming outlined the policy and program being set up in some towns and already under way in others.

A general survey of all three groups of economic activities contemplated, he said, "Questionnaires will be completed on each industry business and farm in the county and these reports compiled in such a manner as to give business men a basis for their post-war planning."

Deming announced that another county meeting would be called in March, at which time the various city programs will be reviewed and reports filed with the state organization in Cincinnati.

The executive and advisory committees are comprised of the following men:

County chairman, G. R. Deming of Salem; vice chairman, Gordon E. Starkey of East Liverpool; executive secretary, Holland Cameron of Salem.

Executive committee members who in turn are chairman of their respective community programs are: Lisbon, G. C. Rauch; East Liverpool, Emerson Hall; Columbiana, Roy Bilger; East Palestine, W. A. Hunston; Leetonia, Robert Harrold; Wellsville, William T. Pomeroy; Easton, R. S. McCulloch; Salineville, K. K. Hutson.

Advisory committee: Malcolm Thompson and R. L. Cawood, East Liverpool; Ralph Hawley and Andrew McLeod, Salem; Floyd Lower, Lisbon; Kenneth T. Gormley, Columbiana; C. E. Holt, Leetonia; Robert Henry, of East Palestine; William Wright, Lisbon.

POLICE SOLVE NEW BURGLARY

Youth, 18, Admits Service Station Job Jan. 20; Laundry Entered

Police today closed another link in a chain of breaking and entering crimes committed in Salem within the past two months with the arrest of another 18-year-old suspect and were investigating a burglary at the American Laundry, S. Broadway, which occurred last night.

Capt. Nerr Gaunt and Patrolman George Reash last night arrested Henry Theodore Sobolewski, 18, of W. Wilson st., suspected of being implicated in the breaking and entering off the Grover service station at the corner of Pine ave. and W. State st. Jan. 20.

The station was looted of $40 in cash, a car radio, eight cartons of cigarettes, 1435 gallons worth of gasoline ration coupons, tools, postage stamps and other miscellaneous items.

The thieves broke into the station by smashing a window from an automatic overhead door and crawling through.

Sobolewski admitted being a partner in the looting with John Paul Kistler, 20, also of W. Wilson st., who is now confined to county jail in Youngstown following arrest Tuesday on a charge of looting the High school building Monday evening.

Kistler admitted the High school burglary and looting Monks' garage on Jan. 18. He is being held on $2,000 bond, pending a hearing before the grand jury.

Both boys confessed "the robbery was Kistler's idea." He said they had divided the loot in his cellar on W. Wilson st. and had hid the radio in a field off Jennings ave. Police located the radio and the other stolen articles. The gas stamps were burned, the youth said. The arrest last night brings the

Trap Nazis In E. Prussia

AREA CUT OFF; SOVIETS SCAN BRANDENBURG

Reds Begin Grim Mopping Up Operations In Province

LONDON, Jan. 26.—East Prussia has been cut off and German troops there isolated, Moscow dispatches reported today, as Russian tanks to the south were placed by German broadcasts close to the border of Brandenburg, Prussian province of which Berlin is the capital.

From Moscow AP Correspondent Eddy Gilmore said Russians, having isolated the German forces in East Prussia, were starting "the grim task of storming Konigsberg and Elbing, the two biggest centers of resistance left." A wide mopping up operation in the German province was reported in progress, with Soviet columns from 10 to 15 miles from Konigsberg.

Today's German communique said Russian tank formations had driven "farther to the west and northwest on both sides of Poznan." It reported bitter fighting was in progress for Poznan, Bydgoszcz and Torun. Bydgoszcz is 69 miles northwest of Poznan and Torun is about 25 miles east of Bydgoszcz.

The German high command announced "a fierce mining and communications center in upper Silesia held by Russians."

In East Prussia, the German communique said, strong forces of Red infantry and tanks were beaten back in heavy fighting after trying to break across the Pregel and Rhine rivers.

The German radio announced "the threat to Brandenburg, the Red

E. Rochester Soldier Awarded Bronze Star

Maj. Gen. Horace L. McBride, commanding general of the 80th Infantry division in France announces that Corp. Albert Ackelson, of East Rochester, Division headquarters, Military Police platoon, has received the Bronze Star medal for meritorious service in France.

"The citation reads:

"During the period Aug. 3, 1944, to Dec. 8, 1944, Corp. Ackelson distinguished himself by his service in the capacity of motor sergeant of an infantry battalion. Through all types of weather and many long movements, and during all the engagements with the enemy, he has efficiently and unceasingly maintained all the vehicles of his battalion in a high state of operational efficiency. His technical ability, resourcefulness and untiring devotion to duty are commensurate with the finest traditions of the armed forces of the United States."

Land Preservation In Mine Areas Advocated

COLUMBUS, Jan. 26.—Prompts legislation to insure future preservation of state land denuded by strip coal mining was promised by 20 members of the legislature from the mining areas after a meeting with Gov. Frank J. Lausche yesterday.

The governor said there was no intention to prohibit strip mining or impair the war effort.

ENEMY FLEES TO PLAIN ON OTHER SIDE

U. S. 7th, Aided by Weather, Slows Germans In Alsace

PARIS, Jan. 26.—The American Ninth army captured the last four-mile section of the Siegfried line before it today and with the British Second army closed up to the Roer river all the 46 airline miles from Holland to below Duren.

The Germans had abandoned the Hitlerian fortifications and fled to the Cologne plain east of the Roer. Men of the Ninth closed to within 25 miles of Dusseldorf, 12 of Munchen Gladbach and 20 of Cologne in a limited attack which overran Brachelen and six nearby industrial villages of Rhenish Prussia.

The United States Seventh army and a third day of heavy snowfall stopped the strongly armored seven German divisions attacking in Alsace, 16 miles north of Strasbourg.

The First and Third armies drew close to the German frontier in the Ardennes section and in many long stretches were looking across the Our river into the Siegfried line.

Springboard to Reich

The Roer banks provided Gen. Eisenhower with a potential springboard for a decisive lunge into the Ruhr and Rhineland.

"The Germans repeated speculations of a new Allied offensive, and told of American massing west of Juelich, 25 miles west of Cologne. Russian writers also said an Allied drive was perhaps imminent."

With flame throwers ready but with field batteries saving their rationed shells, the 102nd Caval division advanced up to four miles on the Ninth army front. They seized 97 Siegfried pillboxes, from 10 to 18 miles inside Germany.

"British patrols just north reported they reached the Roer on a front of several miles without contacting the Germans," AP Correspondent Wes Gallagher reported from the Ninth army front. "This clears the Second Army sector west of the Roer and liberates the Bittard sector of Holland."

On the opposite flank of the Western front, Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh army appeared to have brought the new German offensive in North Alsace to a standstill, AP Correspondent Robert C. Wilson reported.

House fighting continued in Schillersdorf, 10 miles north of the Saarcrne gap. Allied lifeline to imperilled Strasbourg.

In the woods just west of Haguenau, 15 miles north of the Alsatian capital, the American were mopping up Germans who crossed the Moser river between Neuburg and Schwighouse. The penetration east of Haguenau was cleared and 60 Germans captured.

Fighting broke out near Blachwiller, four miles southeast of Haguenau. The snow has 18 inches deep in places, bogging down infantry and tanks and ground planes.

Set Dates Again On Food Ration Stamps

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The OPA today reestablished a policy of definite invalidation dates for food ration stamps, with each series good roughly four months.

As at present, a new series of red stamps for meat and dairy products and blue stamps for processed food will be validated each month. Instead of being good indefinitely, they will expire after about 16 weeks.

The agency also restored its expiration policy for sugar stamps, announcing that coupon No. 34—the only one now good—may not be used after Feb. 24.

Sugar stamp No. 35, good for five pounds beginning Feb. 1, will be valid through June 2. Overlapping this coupon, a new stamp is due to be validated May 1.

Liquor Enforcement Job Given Sandusky Brewer

COLUMBUS, Jan. 26.—Frank W. Kleinfelder, 54, of Sandusky, today was named chief of the State Liquor department's enforcement division. The position, which has been paying $5,000, will earn about $600 more beginning this year.

Kleinfelder succeeds J. W. Cleary of Cincinnati, who has been enforcement chief since April, 1939.

Liquor Director Robert M. Schnaken, in announcing the appointment, said Kleinfelder had been with the Cleveland-Sandusky Brewing Co. since he was 12 years old, and now is chairman of both the Democratic executive and central committees in Erie county. He is married and has three children.

Theory of a Cabinet

The quadrennial review of the theory of the presidential cabinet which inevitably accompanies the beginning of a new presidential term is brought to sharp focus this year by the Jones-Wallace tiff in the department of labor and retention of Frances Perkins as secretary of labor.

In both instances, the secretaryship of a major department is made to turn not on the intrinsic ability of an individual, but on political considerations which threaten to impair the department's efficiency.

Thus, Mr. Wallace, not an ideal choice to head the department of commerce, is selected to pay off President Roosevelt's political debt at the expense of Mr. Jones, who has won an impressive amount of confidence by his performance in the post. Miss Perkins, under whom the department of labor has lost prestige during a period when labor's welfare and problems have been paramount, apparently is being retained because of her weakness, instead of her strength. With organized labor unable to agree on a successor, she has become an administrative stop-gap, neither wholly acceptable nor wholly unacceptable to any faction.

During the presidential campaign, Gov. Dewey raised the issue of strong vs. weak cabinet government, pledging himself to surround himself, if elected, with the most capable individuals available. Mr. Roosevelt did not choose to join the issue then, but he has joined it now by revealing that his cabinet will remain in status quo; i. e., weak.

One, Two, Three—Change

The OPA's notion that it can boost the points on margarine from two to three and thereby cause cooks to conserve it for spreading on bread, instead of using it in cookery, is one of those snap deductions of the theoretical mind that leave the public more amazed than amused.

When the OPA goes further and explains blandly that the cooks are expected to substitute lard, shortening and cooking oils for margarine to make its deduction look good, it's the cooks' turn to make a snap deduction of their own, which is that OPA does not know what it is talking about. They already are using lard, shortening and cooking oils, when they can get them.

The consuming public has nothing but sympathy for the harassed officials who try to figure out ration point controls for scarce commodities. But its patience is sorely tried whenever the officials blandly assume that things can be changed by a twist of the wrist, or by issuing another veiled edict. If margarine is going to be scarce, all right, so margarine is going to be scarce, and that is a sufficient excuse for trimming consumption by raising the point value. But it is not a sufficient excuse for some restaurant-bureaucrat sitting behind a desk in Washington to tell housewives how to run things in the hot stove department. Not that they will take the advice seriously, but it makes them sore, and making the cooks of this country sore is no way to sustain morale.

Estimating a Gain

The German offensive in the Ardennes area, according to military appraisal, has been liquidated. The war in the west now enters a new phase. Pending the emergence of developments which will make clear what the military reaction in Europe is going to be, it is a proper occasion to acknowledge some of the obvious facts of civilian reaction at home.

We are more grimly conscious of casualties than before. Americans have sustained the hardest blow of the war. The heavy casualties they were prepared to hear about as the result of the invasion of Europe in June were only a fraction of the casualties that occurred unexpectedly during December and the first part of January.

We are more realistically aware of all the tremendous sacrifices which war demands. The casualties have been only partly responsible. Chiefly responsible is our belated realization that this nation was misled by its wishful thoughts into overestimating itself and underestimating the Germans. This is total war; we will not be likely to forget that again.

We are better prepared than before to appreciate our allies. The impact of the Russian offensive, which is reported to be drawing troops away from the west to the east, has provided clearer understanding of what the Russians endured when they alone were fighting Germany on land. It has made clearer, too, the magnitude of British courage when it alone stood between Germany and the fulfillment of its designs of conquest.

We are better able to deal with the obligations the United States has undertaken than we were when the end of the war seemed to be only a few weeks away. The fighting front in Europe and the home front have been brought closer together. We stand warned in advance against the possibility of underestimating the Japanese. Americans have learned an important lesson in the hard school of adversity.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, January 27.

PROCLIVITIES toward postponing serious and practical affairs, with the pursuit of relaxation and pleasure after several strenuous days, are not encouraged by the planetary configurations, which denote critical situations in which the emotions and strange moods or intuitions must be subdued for real effort to pushing exceptional opportunities for brilliant performance. This should be developed while "the iron is hot" and while public attention or the cooperation of those in power are at hand. Romance and adventure will not be entirely obscured. But in all affairs beware peculiar intrigues.

Those whose birthday it is should marshal their highest energies and plans on the attainment of major interests and well-launched objectives well on the way to outstanding accomplishment. Public and private fulfillments seem to center on this practical and constructive work, although focused upon originality, novelty and bold techniques out of the usual scope of operations.

Change and travel, with revamping of certain angles or strategies, should be undertaken under wise counsel and personal reflection.

A child born on this day will have much talent of unusual creative ability and ingenuity, promising an eventful career, perhaps in public service.

Phoo-ee

A piece of radio publicity we came upon mentioned something about a "combat returnee," and revived our concern over just how far this double-business is going to go.

The war has brought us the draftee (or that nicely substitute, selectee) and the trainee. Now we have the returnee, and very likely the dischargee will be coming along when he has reduced the German and the Jap to the status of vanquished. In a recent dispatch from Stockholm, a French "escapee" described his experiences in a Berlin prison.

The possibilities are limited only by the number of English nouns identifying the performer of an action. And that's what frightens us. For, by wholesale application of a stiff and tiresome practice of the law and business world, every performer can have his performee, every lover his lovee, etc.

Where it all will end is beyond us. Perhaps there will have to be some organized crusade to rescue the language of Shakespeare and Bernard Shaw and H. L. Mencken from the ad writers, press agents and other professional word-coilers, and give it back to those who still prefer to call a spade a spade, or a combat returnee just a plain soldier come home.

New Talent To the Fore

The War Manpower commission has announced that it will conduct an inventory of male labor employed in the vending and amusement machine industry of Cleveland, with an eye toward putting the men to work at highly skilled jobs in armament plants.

Anyone who ever watched one of these wizards set right the highly complicated innards of a cigaret machine or juke box will agree that they could assemble a bomb-sight with boxing gloves on, and that the WMC really has something.

The possibilities are fascinating. Imagine a bombardier over Cologne pressing the button on a gadget turned out by one of these ex-coin machine mechanics. Coincident with the dropping of bombs, Kay Kyser would probably play "I'll Be Seeing You," and then out would pop a package of a leading brand.

A Gag Grows In Brooklyn

Sidney H. Ascher, president of the Society for the Prevention of Disparaging Remarks About Brooklyn, states in his annual report that the proud and fiercely sensitive borough of Greater New York was maligned 8014 times by stage, screen, radio and newspaper writers in 1944, as compared with 3781 times in 1943.

We are falling for a press agent's gag in even mentioning Mr. Ascher and his SPDRAB. And we don't for a moment believe that Mr. Ascher spent a great deal of precious time during the past year of decision in counting the libels against his home town. But we will say that in even implying that that "as all he had to do, Mr. Ascher has stretched the Brooklyn gag to the yawning point. So we hereby swear off any further variations of the same gag for the rest of 1945. That goes for the Dodgers.

Somehow the idea of hearing Frank Sinatra on a vitamin program makes us think of Kate Smith.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Nodes and Their Function

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
EVERY mother knows, if she has been at the job of mothering long, certainly every teacher knows how common is the occurrence of little lumps in the neck of child-

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

They are variously called kernels, glands, nodes, accorns, knots or nodules, depending upon what part of the country you are in, or how precise the doctors you talk to about them wish to be.

Strictly speaking they are nodes, not glands, because glands secrete something and these do not. They are nodes which are stops or way stations in the lymphatic system, which is the accessory circulatory system of the body, carrying the fluid lymph to all parts. When you cut yourself and after the bleeding stops, a clear fluid comes from cut. That clear fluid is lymph coming not from the blood vessels, but from the tissue spaces.

A Queer Kind of Circulation
The lymphatic system is a queer kind of circulation because it has no such thing as a heart—an engine to pump the fluid around. And half the time the lymph is not confined to any definite walls, such as the arteries, veins and capillaries which hold the blood. Nor are its functions entirely understood. The only nutrient it carries is when the lymph vessels in the intestines take up fat after a heavy meal and they carry that to the large blood vessels in the chest.

The main function of the lymph seems to be to carry immune bodies and scavenger cells to fight infection and keep the tissues clear of germs and inflammation.

Nodes In The Neck
That is why the kernels, or nodes, arise in the neck. They are sort of stations along the route of the lymphatic vessels and when the traffic gets jammed and the line is filled with germs these stations swell up and proceed to kill off the unwelcome invaders on the spot.

The reason they enlarge in the neck most often is on account of the enormous number of possibilities of infection in the scalp and head region which this particular part of the lymphatic system drains. If a child gets lice in the scalp or any infection, the nodes under the angle of the jaw swell up. The same nodes drain infection from the middle ear. If a tooth becomes abscessed, the nodes under the jaw bone enlarge, and if a mouth or lower lip infection occurs the nodes just under the point of the jaw swell. The tonsils drain into the deeper nodes along the large muscles going crosswise from the skull to the breastbone—the sterno-mastoids.

The only other places on the body where lymph nodes swell up en masse is in the armpits, from any finger or arm infection, and in the groin from infection in the feet and legs.

Eliminate the Infection
The treatment of these conditions is to eliminate the original site of infection—delouse the scalp, pull the tooth, remove the tonsils, etc. After that the swollen lymph nodes rapidly go down to normal size. Hot applications in the the meantime help, but don't rub liniment on them too hard—not on account of the liniment, but the rubbing. Sometimes the infection is tuberculous—it used to be called scrofula—and in that case the nodes will often require to be removed surgically, but this condition is not nearly as common as it was in times past.

Theory of a Cabinet

The quadrennial review of the theory of the presidential cabinet which inevitably accompanies the beginning of a new presidential term is brought to sharp focus this year by the Jones-Wallace tiff in the department of labor and retention of Frances Perkins as secretary of labor.

In both instances, the secretaryship of a major department is made to turn not on the intrinsic ability of an individual, but on political considerations which threaten to impair the department's efficiency.

Thus, Mr. Wallace, not an ideal choice to head the department of commerce, is selected to pay off President Roosevelt's political debt at the expense of Mr. Jones, who has won an impressive amount of confidence by his performance in the post. Miss Perkins, under whom the department of labor has lost prestige during a period when labor's welfare and problems have been paramount, apparently is being retained because of her weakness, instead of her strength. With organized labor unable to agree on a successor, she has become an administrative stop-gap, neither wholly acceptable nor wholly unacceptable to any faction.

During the presidential campaign, Gov. Dewey raised the issue of strong vs. weak cabinet government, pledging himself to surround himself, if elected, with the most capable individuals available. Mr. Roosevelt did not choose to join the issue then, but he has joined it now by revealing that his cabinet will remain in status quo; i. e., weak.

One, Two, Three—Change

The OPA's notion that it can boost the points on margarine from two to three and thereby cause cooks to conserve it, is one of those bread deductions of the theoretical mind that leave the public more amazed than amused.

When the OPA goes further and explains blandly that the cooks are expected to substitute lard, shortening and cooking oils for margarine to make its deduction look good, it's the cooks' turn to make a snap deduction of their own, which is that OPA does not know what it is talking about. They already are using lard, shortening and cooking oils, when they can get them.

The consuming public has nothing but sympathy for the harassed officials who try to figure out ration point controls for scarce commodities. But its patience is sorely tried whenever the officials blandly assume that things can be changed by a twist of the wrist, or by issuing another veiled edict. If margarine is going to be scarce, all right, so margarine is going to be scarce, and that is a sufficient excuse for trimming consumption by raising the point value. But it is not a sufficient excuse for some restaurant-bureaucrat sitting behind a desk in Washington to tell housewives how to run things in the hot stove department. Not that they will take the advice seriously, but it makes them sore, and making the cooks of this country sore is no way to sustain morale.

Estimating a Gain

The German offensive in the Ardennes area, according to military appraisal, has been liquidated. The war in the west now enters a new phase. Pending the emergence of developments which will make clear what the military reaction in Europe is going to be, it is a proper occasion to acknowledge some of the obvious facts of civilian reaction at home.

We are more grimly conscious of casualties than before. Americans have sustained the hardest blow of the war. The heavy casualties they were prepared to hear about as the result of the invasion of Europe in June were only a fraction of the casualties that occurred unexpectedly during December and the first part of January.

We are more realistically aware of all the tremendous sacrifices which war demands. The casualties have been only partly responsible. Chiefly responsible is our belated realization that this nation was misled by its wishful thoughts into overestimating itself and underestimating the Germans. This is total war; we will not be likely to forget that again.

We are better prepared than before to appreciate our allies. The impact of the Russian offensive, which is reported to be drawing troops away from the west to the east, has provided clearer understanding of what the Russians endured when they alone were fighting Germany on land. It has made clearer, too, the magnitude of British courage when it alone stood between Germany and the fulfillment of its designs of conquest.

We are better able to deal with the obligations the United States has undertaken than we were when the end of the war seemed to be only a few weeks away. The fighting front in Europe and the home front have been brought closer together. We stand warned in advance against the possibility of underestimating the Japanese. Americans have learned an important lesson in the hard school of adversity.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, January 27.

PROCLIVITIES toward postponing serious and practical affairs, with the pursuit of relaxation and pleasure after several strenuous days, are not encouraged by the planetary configurations, which denote critical situations in which the emotions and strange moods or intuitions must be subdued for real effort to pushing exceptional opportunities for brilliant performance. This should be developed while "the iron is hot" and while public attention or the cooperation of those in power are at hand. Romance and adventure will not be entirely obscured. But in all affairs beware peculiar intrigues.

Those whose birthday it is should marshal their highest energies and plans on the attainment of major interests and well-launched objectives well on the way to outstanding accomplishment. Public and private fulfillments seem to center on this practical and constructive work, although focused upon originality, novelty and bold techniques out of the usual scope of operations.

Change and travel, with revamping of certain angles or strategies, should be undertaken under wise counsel and personal reflection.

A child born on this day will have much talent of unusual creative ability and ingenuity, promising an eventful career, perhaps in public service.

Phoo-ee

A piece of radio publicity we came upon mentioned something about a "combat returnee," and revived our concern over just how far this double-business is going to go.

The war has brought us the draftee (or that nicely substitute, selectee) and the trainee. Now we have the returnee, and very likely the dischargee will be coming along when he has reduced the German and the Jap to the status of vanquished. In a recent dispatch from Stockholm, a French "escapee" described his experiences in a Berlin prison.

The possibilities are limited only by the number of English nouns identifying the performer of an action. And that's what frightens us. For, by wholesale application of a stiff and tiresome practice of the law and business world, every performer can have his performance, every lover his lover, etc.

Where it all will end is beyond us. Perhaps there will have to be some organized crusade to rescue the language of Shakespeare and Bernard Shaw and H. L. Mencken from the ad writers, press agents and other professional word-comers, and give it back to those who still prefer to call a spade a spade, or a combat returnee just a plain soldier come home.

New Talent To the Fore

The War Manpower commission has announced that it will conduct an inventory of male labor employed in the vending and amusement machine industry of Cleveland, with an eye toward putting the men to work at highly skilled jobs in armament plants.

Anyone who ever watched one of these wizards set right the highly complicated innards of a cigaret machine or juke box will agree that they could assemble a bomb-sight with boxing gloves on, and that the WMC really has something.

The possibilities are fascinating. Imagine a bombardier over Cologne pressing the button on a gadget turned out by one of these ex-coint machine mechanics. Coincident with the dropping of bombs, Kay Kyser would probably play "I'll Be Seeing You," and then out would pop a package of a leading brand.

A Gag Grows In Brooklyn

Eldred H. Ascher, president of the Society for the Prevention of Disparaging Remarks About Brooklyn, states in his annual report that the proud and fiercely sensitive borough of Greater New York was maligned 8014 times by stage, screen, radio and newspaper writers in 1944, as compared with 3781 times in 1943.

We are failing for a press agent's gag in even mentioning Mr. Ascher and his SPDRAB. And we don't for a moment believe that Mr. Ascher spent a great deal of precious time during the past year of decision in counting the libels against his home town.

But we will say that in even implying that that "as all he had to do, Mr. Ascher has stretched the Brooklyn gag to the yawning point. So we hereby swear off any further variations of the same gag for the rest of 1945. That goes for the Dodgers.

Somewhat the idea of hearing Frank Sinatra on a vitamin program makes us think of Kate Smith.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Nodes and Their Function

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
EVERY mother knows, if she has been at the job of mothering long, certainly every teacher knows how common is the occurrence of little lumps in the neck of chil-

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

They are variously called kernels, glands, nodes, accorns, knots or nodules, depending upon what part of the country you are in, or how precise the doctors you talk to about them wish to be.

Strictly speaking they are nodes, not glands, because glands secrete something and these do not. They are nodes which are stops or way stations in the lymphatic system, which is the accessory circulatory system of the body, carrying the fluid lymph to all parts. When you cut yourself and after the bleeding stops, a clear fluid oozes from cut. That clear fluid is lymph coming, not from the blood vessels, but from the tissue spaces.

A Queer Kind of Circulation

The lymphatic system is a queer kind of circulation because it has no such thing as a heart—an engine to pump the fluid around. And half the time the lymph is not confined to any definite walls, such as the arteries, veins and capillaries which hold the blood. Nor are its functions entirely understood. The only nutrient it carries is when the lymph vessels in the intestines take up fat after a heavy meal and they carry that to the large blood vessels in the chest.

The main function of the lymph seems to be to carry immune bodies and scavenger cells to fight infection and keep the tissues clear of germs and inflammation.

Nodes In The Neck

That is why the kernels, or nodes, arise in the neck. They are sort of stations along the route of the lymphatic vessels and when the traffic gets jammed and the line is filled with germs these stations swell up and proceed to kill off the unwelcome invaders on the spot.

The reason they enlarge in the neck most often is on account of the enormous number of possibilities of infection in the scalp and head region which this particular part of the lymphatic system drains. If a child gets lice in the scalp or any infection, the nodes under the angle of the jaw swell up. The same nodes drain infection from the middle ear. If a tooth becomes abscessed, the nodes under the jaw bone enlarge, and if a mouth or lower lip infection occurs the nodes just under the point of the jaw swell. The tonsils drain into the deeper nodes along the large muscles going crosswise from the skull to the breast bone—the sterno-mastoids.

The only other places on the body where lymph nodes swell up are in the armpits, under the arm and in the groin from infection in the feet and legs.

Eliminate the Infection

The treatment of these conditions is to eliminate the original site of infection—dehouse the scalp, pull the tooth, remove the tonsils, etc. After that the swollen lymph nodes rapidly go down to normal size. Hot applications in-the meantime help, but don't rub liniment on them too hard—not on account of the liniment, but the rubbing. Sometimes the infection is tuberculous—is used to be called scrofula—and in that case the nodes will often require to be removed surgically, but this condition is not nearly as common as it was in times past.

Sometimes, also, an infected lymph node breaks down and becomes full of pus and has to be drained, but this is also a minor matter.

Such swellings are not entirely confined to children, of course. Adults may have the same infection. But in adults the condition is likely to betoken something more serious.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. L. A.—If one lives in a small town where the water is very hard from none too pure a source and one drank none other than boiled water would it have a good, ill, or no effect? Would drinking mineral water counteract such an effect? Will drinking mineral water relieve any case of arthritis?

Answer: Drinking boiled water has no effect other than simply supplying the water needs of the body. It is not necessary to supplement distilled water with mineral water. The old theory was that mineral water acted favorably on arthritis by dissolving mineral or gouty deposits, but this idea has been abandoned.

STRATEGIC

during the war. The government can devise a way to draft men, but nobody has yet devised a way to draft the human heart. It is time we began to think less of perfection in politics and to think more of the implementation of a moral idea backed up with power."

New Strategy To End War
"It is necessary now for us to consider the results of the realistic false strategy and endeavor to discover a new strategy to end war as other curses of the world have been ended—by examination as through a microscope, isolation of the germ, analysis of its properties."

Policy, which denies principle and seeks expediency, has caused the reverses which America has suffered on the west wall since Dec. 16. It is a cause of war and in war, causes defeat.
Through 1941 and 1942 the Russians fought a war made by policy and were losing it, until, at Stalingrad, Stalin threw the issue up to the people, and the people of Russia rose to throw back the Germans. The American attack in Africa accomplished the same purpose—the purpose of true strategy—in November, 1942, paving the way for the great operation in Europe by the Russians.

In 1942 the American people consistently demanded the opening of an offensive in the west against Germany while she was occupied in the east by Russia. It was not the Army, the government or the military strategists who launched the North African invasion, but the people whose will could not be disregarded.

Terrible Results of Policy
Again, after the Russian armies had advanced to the Vistula and stopped there, the demand arose for an Allied attack on the Balkans from Italy. But here, "policy" muddled the waters of strategy, and instead of sending Allied forces into the Balkans to support the Russian campaign at the Vistula, invasion came through France. There was no Russian advance on the Vistula, the Polish crisis arose, American armies were held on the west wall and von Rundstedt launched his murderous counter-offensive.

"Policy has wrought terrible things. The search for political advantage has prevented the Allied from achieving quick victory over the enemy."
"Until the people, abandoning false strategy and policy, are willing to make a true strategic commitment and deny politicians who will try to take away from the people the victory the people have won by promising immediate rewards of commercial advantages, revenge and material gains, there will be no peace," Col. Kernan declared.

"We have been too willing to let the other fellow fight our battles, we have been unwilling to show we were in the fight up to the hilt and would never abandon the cause."
Our only chance to play a leading role in the realm of international affairs is through our complete occupation of strategic terrain and the upsetting of enemy equilibrium by an army who will be sufficiently large and powerful enough to suppress the causes for future wars at their sources. American armies must be a part of that force and we must be willing to make that commitment. We must "express in vote our heroism of this war."

Peace Is Not Static
Col. Kernan pointed out that "peace is not static as politicians would have us believe, but is a dynamic thing and can only be written once and for all into any treaty. There is no foolproof plan or system to make peace. The people must make it with a strategic commitment."

"We have never had, in all the history of the world, the two conditions to create peace, as we have now. The two conditions are a government which embodies justice, and strategic power. Only one nation can satisfy those two conditions for peace. America's place in history, our contribution to the world, may be that we gave it peace."

"Peace is not created by diplomats. It is a delivery of human nature from itself."
Col. Kernan, who will go to his home in Biloxi, Miss., soon to complete a third book on the subject on which he spoke here, answered questions from the audience following his address.

Warns Deputy Registrars On Political Activities

COLUMBUS, Jan. 26—A warning to deputy registrars of motor vehicles not to use any part of their fees for payment to political leaders was voiced yesterday by Gov. Frank J. Lausche.
The governor said deputies would be removed from office if any such payments were made. He said he learned that in the past registrars contributed fees to political bosses.
Lausche said he was receiving recommendations for registrar appointments from county chairmen and others.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINTS

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

WITH THE U. S. SECOND INFANTRY DIVISION IN BELGIUM
Battle highlights:
On group of doughboys surrounded by German tanks saved themselves by having their own artillery shell their position, but they had to argue with the gunners too do it.
Enemy Tiger tanks had encircled a number of houses in which Lt. Richard B. Holley of LaGrande, Ore., and his men were posted with bazookas and automatic rifles.

Deciding the only way to keep from being wiped out was to call down heavy artillery, the infantrymen sent back the coordinates for their positions and asked the big guns to open up.
"At first the artillery refused to fire for fear they'd hit us," said Tech. Sgt. Riley Bruner, Lamar, Okla., "but we just kept aggravating them until they fired."

One German tank was knocked out and the others fled. The doughboys were unhurt.

Corp. George O. MacBride of Fort Smith, Ark., got word from his wife that she had mailed him a bottle of his favorite soft drink. For weeks he waited. Finally it came. The corporal put it away for a special occasion. A shell burst nearby and he heard an ominous "clink." A shell fragment had cracked the bottle.

"You know what I think about the Germans?" inquired MacBride. "They are a lot of dash dash blank-ety blank blanks, every one of them. And you can quote me personally."

One doughboy is angry because an antitank gun knocked out the German tank he was chasing with a bazooka, but he consoled himself by polishing off one of the Nazi tankmen with a pistol.
The infantryman is Pfc. Frank Silva of Dallas, Texas, a company runner.
The incident occurred near Krinkelt, Belgium.

"If I had known then what I know now I would have given them each a bullet," exclaimed Pfc. Gene (Tony) Di Sandro, Philadelphia.
Di Sandro said during 13 months in the Italian army before the war he saw Mussolini several times and Hitler once, when the German dictator was in Rome in 1937.

Following his discharge from the Italian army, Di Sandro went to the United States in 1938 with his father, Dominic Di Sandro, a plumber. Nov. 29, Pvt. Di Sandro is regarded as one of the best machine gunners in his company.

Gen. McClure Transferred To New Chinese Command

CHUNGKING, Jan. 26—Maj. Gen. Albert C. Zedemeyer announced today he had transferred his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure to Kunming to head a new combat command, which would enable the Americans to exert the best and strongest influence possible in Chinese military affairs "without actually commanding."

The new organization will direct all American cadres attached to the Chinese army, said the commander of U. S. Forces in China.

Wedemeyer also announced that Brig. Gen. Mervin E. Gross, assistant chief of staff for plans, had been appointed acting chief of staff.

during the war. The government can devise a way to draft men, but nobody has yet devised a way to draft the human heart. It is time we began to think less of perfectionism in politics and to think more of the implementation of a moral idea backed up with power."

Strategy To End War

"It is necessary now for us to consider the results of the realistic false strategy and endeavor to discover a new strategy to end war as other causes of the world have been ended—by examination as through a microscope, isolation of the germ, analysis of its properties."

"Policy, which denies principle and seeks expediency, has caused the reverses which America has suffered on the west wall since Dec. 16. It is a cause of war and in war, causes defeat."

Through 1941 and 1942 the Russians fought a war made by policy and were losing it, until, at Stalin's order, Stalin admitted defeat of his policy, threw the issue up to the people, and the people of Russia rose to throw back the Germans. The American attack in Africa accomplished the same purpose—the purpose of true strategy—in November, 1942, paving the way for the great operation in Europe by the Russians.

In 1942 the American people consistently demanded the opening of an offensive in the west against Germany while she was occupied in the east by Russia. It was not the Army, the government or the military strategists who launched the North African invasion, but the people whose will could not be disregarded.

Terrible Results of Policy

Again, after the Russian armies had advanced to the Vistula and stopped there, the demand arose for an Allied attack on the Balkans from Italy. But here, "policy" misled the waters of strategy" and instead of sending Allied forces into the Balkans to support the Russian campaign at the Vistula, invasion came through France. There was no Russian advance on the Vistula, the Polish crisis arose, American armies were held on the west wall and von Rundstedt launched his murderous counter-offensive.

"Policy" has wrought terrible things. The search for political advantage has prevented the Allied from achieving quick victory over the enemy.

"Until the people, abandoning false strategy and policy," are willing to make a true strategic commitment and deny politicians who will try to take away from the people the victory the people have won by promising immediate rewards of commercial advantages, revenge and material gains, there will be no peace," Col. Kernan declared.

"We have been too willing to let the other fellow fight our battles, we have been unwilling to show we were in the fight up to the hilt and would never abandon the cause."

Our only chance to play a leading role in the realm of international affairs is through our complete occupation of strategic terrain and the upsetting of enemy equilibrium by an army which will be sufficiently large and powerful enough to suppress the causes for future wars at their sources. American armies must be a part of that force and we must be willing to make that commitment. We must "express in vote our heroism of this war."

Peace Is Not Static

Col. Kernan pointed out that "peace is not static" as politicians would have us believe, but is a dynamic thing and can only be written once and for all into any treaty. There is no foolproof path to system to make peace. The people must make it with a strategic commitment."

"We have never had, in all the history of the world, the two conditions to create peace as we have now. The two conditions are a government which embodies justice, and strategic power. Only one nation can satisfy those two conditions for peace. America's place in history, our contribution to the world, may be that we gave it peace."

"Peace is not created by diplomats. It is a delivery of human nature from itself."

Col. Kernan, who will go to his home in Biloxi, Miss., soon to complete a third book on the subject on which he spoke here, answered questions from the audience following his address.

Warns Deputy Registrars On Political Activities

COLUMBUS, Jan. 26—A warning to deputy registrars of motor vehicles not to use any part of their fees for payment to political leaders was voiced yesterday by Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

The governor said deputies would be removed from office if any such payments were made. He said he learned that in the past registrars contributed fees to political bosses.

Lausche said he was receiving recommendations for registrar appointments from county chairmen and others."

LEAVES FROM A WAR
CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK
—by Hal Boyle—

WITH THE U. S. SECOND INFANTRY DIVISION IN BELGIUM

Battle highlights:

On group of doughboys surrounded by German tanks saved themselves by having their own artillery shell their position, but they had to argue with the gunners too do it.

Enemy Tiger tanks had encircled a number of houses in which Lt. Richard B. Holley of LaGrande, Ore., and his men were posted with bazookas and automatic rifles. Deciding the only way to keep from being wiped out was to call down heavy artillery, the infantrymen sent back the coordinates for their positions and asked the big guns to open up.

"At first the artillery refused to fire for fear they'd hit us," said Tech. Sgt. Riley Bruner, Lamar, Okla., "but we just kept aggravating them until they fired."

One German tank was knocked out and the others fled. The doughboys were unhurt.

Corp. George O. MacBride of Fort Smith, Ark., got word from his wife that she had mailed him a bottle of his favorite soft drink. For weeks he waited. Finally it came. The corporal put it away for a special occasion. A shell burst nearby and he heard an ominous "clink." A shell fragment had cracked the bottle.

"You know what I think about the Germans?" inquired MacBride. "They are a lot of dash dash blankety blank blanks, every one of them. And you can quote me personally."

One doughboy is angry because an antitank gun knocked out the German tank he was chasing with a bazooka, but he consoled himself by polishing off one of the Nazi tankmen with a pistol.

The infantryman is Pfc. Frank Silva of Dallas, Texas, a company runner.

The incident occurred near Krinkelt, Belgium.

"If I had known then what I know now I would have given them each a bullet," exclaimed Pfc. Gene (Tony) Si Sandro, Philadelphia.

Di Sandro said during 13 months in the Italian army before the war he saw Mussolini several times and Hitler once, when the German dictator was in Rome in 1937.

Following his discharge from the Italian army, Di Sandro went to the United States in 1938 with his father, Dominic Di Sandro, a plumber.

Nov. 29, Pvt. Di Sandro is regarded as one of the best machine gunners in his company.

Gen. McClure Transferred To New Chinese Command

CHUNGKING, Jan. 26—Maj. Gen. Albert C. Zedemeyer announced today he had transferred his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure to Kunning to head a new combat command which would enable the Americans to exert the best and strongest influence possible in Chinese military affairs "without actually commanding."

The new organization will direct all American cadres attached to the Chinese army, said the commander of U. S. Forces in China. Zedemeyer also announced that Brig. Gen. Mervin E. Gross, assistant chief of staff for plans, had been appointed acting chief of staff.

Mrs. Thomas B. Hyland, collector of buttons, discussed her collection and showed a number of trays of the 23,000 buttons she owns, at a meeting of Beta Sigma Phi sorority last night at the home of Miss Carmen McNicol, Woodland ave.

"The Pride of Possession" was the program theme, in charge of Mrs. Walter Ferrall. Mrs. Hyland's collection contains many gifts from friends and from other countries.

In connection with the program Mrs. Ferrall displayed an heirloom coverlet which has been in her family for many years and a tablecloth, belonging to Mrs. Carrie Yengling, which is more than 100 years old.

Mrs. James A. Scott was a guest of the sorority.

During the meeting plans were completed for a Valentine party to be held Feb. 8 at the home of Mrs. Orelia A. Naragon, Washington ave.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 22 at the home of Miss Elizabeth O'Neill, Damascus rd.

Orchestra Members Are Entertained By Choir

Methodist Sunday school orchestra members were guests of the choir members at an annual dinner last night at the church.

Tables for the dinner, attended by 50 members of the two organizations, were decorated attractively. A miniature choir centered the table and tiny music stands were favors.

Mrs. Loren Early, president of the choir, gave a short talk and a quiz program was conducted by Miss Lou Jean McDevitt.

Committees in charge were: Decoration, Mrs. Dana Floding and Miss Margaret Cope; quiz, Miss McDevitt; Mrs. William Wright and Harry Loria.

Theater Party Is Held By Deming Girls Club

Deming Girls club enjoyed a theater party and were entertained afterward at the home of Misses Dolores Crawford and Adda Firestone on N. Lincoln ave. last night.

Games and dancing were features of the social hour. Mrs. George McConner was a guest.

The committee in charge included Misses Marguerite Vincent, Betty Duco and Mildred Tate.

total to six youths nabbed this week on breaking and entering charges. Police said Sobolewski has a juvenile record and has admitted throwing a large stone through the Alfani Grocery Co. window Jan. 20. The stone pierced the glass and struck Paul Miller, a clerk, in the eye.

Sunday police apprehended three Alliance Negro boys, aged 11, 12 and 13, after a series of raids on local service stations over the weekend. Tuesday, Kistler and Richard Slosser, 18, also of Alliance, were arrested for looting the High School.

The breaking and entering at the American Laundry was reported to police this morning by Russell Gibbs, co-owner of the company.

Gibbs said four pairs of pants and 30 cents in change had been stolen. Entrance was made by climbing a set of stairs on the south side of the building and breaking through a metal panel in a second story door. The thieves then reached through and lifted a bar to open the door.

PROGRESS TRACED BY MANUFACTURERS

CINCINNATI, Jan. 26.—Great progress in America in the half century under a system of free competition was predicted by spokesman of the National Association of Manufacturers in closing their two-day golden anniversary meeting last night.

Frederick C. Crawford, Cleveland, O., chairman of the NAM's executive committee, speaking against what he termed "planned security," asserted, "there is more security for working men in industries and businesses not yet born than in all the planning of the whole government."

Dr. Howard L. Bevis, president of Ohio State university, said the "government movement to regiment research is the most serious long-term threat to our material prosperity."

He added "a candid proposal to congress now seeks a single board, operating control of all research, research personnel, research equipment with power to formulate and reject projects."

FOOD PRODUCTION MEETING MONDAY

Farm organizations, officers and leaders will meet in the American Legion home in Lisbon from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. Monday, Jan. 29, to discuss various phases of the War Food Production program in Columbiana county for 1945.

Chris Kalnrad, member of the Ohio AAA committee, will speak on agricultural production and its effect on the national economy. J. Glenn Bates of Salem will discuss the county goals for 1945.

A general discussion on practices that will aid in food production and on labor saving practices and devices will also be included in the program. Officers of granges and farm bureaus, members of the County Agricultural War Council, AAA committeemen, township and town Farm Labor chairmen, County Rural Planning committee and chairmen of township Rural Planning committees, feed, fertilizer and machinery dealers, 4-H club advisors, school principals, rural ministers, members of Home Extension council, neighborhood leaders, Soil Conservation District supervisors and township advisors, managers of farm cooperatives, and other interested persons will attend the meeting.

The purpose of the meeting is to formulate plans for maintaining food production for the war effort despite labor shortages and losses of manpower to the armed forces. The county War Food Production committee arranged the meeting.

Report Filipinos Dying Of Starvation In Manila

BAMBAN, Luzon Island, P. I., Jan. 23—(Delayed)—Refugees from Manila reported today hundreds of Filipinos are dying of starvation daily in the Philippines capital where many emaciated bodies can be seen lying in the shabby, unkempt streets.

Stories of starvation within the city and the Santo Tomas internment camp, where I was held for nearly two years, were brought through American lines by both Filipinos and neutrals who left Manila in recent weeks.

All said the Japanese stripped Manila of foodstuffs before moving their major forces northward and severed all communication between the capital and outlying districts.

Manila produces virtually no food. Residents are dependent on outlying farms.

The art of painting is said to have been introduced in Rome from Etruria by Quintus Fabius 291 years before Christ.

FOOD PRODUCTION MEETING MONDAY

Farm organizations, officers and leaders will meet in the American Legion home in Lisbon from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. Monday, Jan. 29, to discuss various phases of the War Food Production program in Columbiana county for 1945.

Chris Kainrad, member of the Ohio AAA committee, will speak on agricultural production and its effect on the national economy. J. Glenn Bates of Salem will discuss the county goals for 1945.

A general discussion on practices that will aid in food production and on labor saving practices and devices will also be included in the program. Officers of granges and farm bureaus, members of the County Agricultural War council, AAA committeemen, township and town Farm Labor chairmen, County Rural Planning committee and chairmen of township Rural Planning committees, feed, fertilizer and machinery dealers, 4-H club advisers, school principals, rural ministers, members of Home Extension council, neighborhood leaders, Soil Conservation District supervisors and township advisers, managers of farm cooperatives, and other interested persons will attend the meeting.

The purpose of the meeting is to formulate plans for maintaining food production for the war effort despite labor shortages and losses of manpower to the armed forces. The county War Food Production committee arranged the meeting.

The War Today

around. A mighty onslaught from the west, while the Germans are trying to get set on their Eastern front, would be calculated to put unbearable pressure on them.
 Berlin, with a weather eye on this, says that Gen. Eisenhower is preparing for a fresh assault and that the attack is imminent. We know that the Allied commander has been getting ready for an attack, and it could come soon, judging by his activities. Both the British and the Americans on the northern flank of the Allied front have been improving their positions and getting set to launch an offensive.

Whether Eisenhower chooses to start an all-out push in weather which vastly hampers the use of the air forces, there can be no doubt that he will keep up a steady and hard pressure against Nazi Marshal Von Rundstedt's line.

TRAPPED NAZIS

army newspaper Red Star asserted "We have reached the last road." At the nearest point the Brandenburg border is within 31 miles of the German capital, but the German broadcast did not place the Russian spearheads exactly. Moscow reported yesterday Red army forces were little more than 125 miles from Berlin.

Two other capital cities of German provinces were being threatened. The Russians announced "all direct communications with Breslau have been cut off" and the Germans declared the Red army had launched an all-out drive for Koenigsberg.

Moscow placed the Russian forces within five miles of Poznan and a German broadcast reported they had driven past both sides of this key city in reaching the vicinity of the Brandenburg frontier. The broadcast said the tank vanguards had been destroyed.

A Red Star dispatch reported German defenses along the Oder river line were "cracking under iron pressure".

Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, admitted "there is no continuous line today." The Berlin publication said contact between German formations on the eastern front had been broken.

The Moscow broadcast said the Red army was advancing with "unabated fervor" at all sections of the front. The Germans asserted the general Soviet advance had been "slowed down but not stopped."

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

around. A mighty onslaught from the west, while the Germans are trying to get set on their Eastern front, would be calculated to put unbearable pressure on them.
 Berlin, with a weather eye on this, says that Gen. Eisenhower is preparing for a fresh assault. We know that the Allied commands have been getting ready for an attack, and it could come soon, judging by his activities. Both the British and the Americans on the northern flank of the Allied front have been improving their position and getting set to launch an offensive.

Whether Eisenhower chooses to start an all-out push in weeks which vastly hampers the use of air forces, there can be no doubt he will keep up a steady and hard pressure against Nazi Marshal Von Rundstedt's line.

army newspaper Red Star asserted: "We have reached the last road. At the nearest point the Brandenburg border is within 21 mi. of the German capital, but the German broadcast did not place the Russian spearheads exact Moscow reported yesterday. Army forces were little more than 125 miles from Berlin."

Two other capital cities of German provinces were being threatened. The Russians announced direct communications with Berlin have been cut off and the Germans declared the Red army launched an all-out drive for Nuremberg.

Moscow placed the Russian within five miles of Poznan a German broadcast reported had driven past both sides of key city in reaching the vicinity of the Brandenburg frontier. broadcast said the tank vanguards had been destroyed.

A Red Star dispatch reported German defenses along the river line were "cracking under pressure."

Hitler's newspaper, the Voelker Beobachter, admitted "there is no continuous line today."

Berlin publication said contact between German formations on eastern front had been broken. The Moscow broadcast said Red army was advancing "unabated fervor" at all sectors of the front. The Germans asserted the general Soviet advance had been "slowed down but stopped."

Major League Joint Meeting Feb. 3 Looms As All-Important

Manpower Problem Is Ace High On Docket But Some Lack Of Unity A Question

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—The joint meeting of the major leagues at New York Feb. 3 is beginning to shape up as the most important baseball pow-wow since the late K. M. Landis was hired as commissioner in 1921.

On the surface, the manpower problem and whether the 1945 season will be delayed, curtailed or cancelled, are the prime topics of discussion. But there's also a question of major league unity, or lack of it, due for a showdown.

National league President Ford Frick and owner Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators the other day held an apparently self-inspired conference with Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey.

The interview seemingly caught Frick's two colleagues on the baseball advisory council—American League President Will Harridge and Leslie M. O'Connor, Landis' former secretary—pretty far off base.

O'Connor's comment that Frick did not "act in an official capacity on behalf of baseball" hardly could be described as knuckle-rapping, but it did hint all is not cozy in what now is baseball's sanctum sanctorum.

Baseball has steered clear of asking wartime favors and whatever the intent of the Hershey interview, some admirers of the late Commissioner Landis may have a word or two to say on it at the Feb. 3 meeting when Frick reports on his Washington pilgrimage.

Frick has asserted Gen. Hershey simply outlined the effects of current manpower rulings on baseball. Commissioner Landis was stoutly opposed to any meeting with government officials which might be interpreted as a bid for special treatment of personnel in wartime.

The fact that Frick is credited in some quarters as having the inside track to the commissionership adds significance to his confab with Hershey. For the moment, the former newspaperman is baseball's unofficial spokesman and the extent to which his "Washington Report" suits his colleagues may determine his chances to succeed Landis.

It wasn't until then that Luke was convinced that Ziggy Sears hadn't given him a strictly National league decision on that close play at third base. Johnny Fultor, the would-be miler from Stanford, reports that after last winter's indoor track tour, he signed up for a public speaking course at Stanford. When he got up before the track writers the other day, Johnny said: "I don't know what to tell you, any questions?" West Point Cadets, who will try intercollegiate skiing competition for the first time tomorrow, have had skiing as a compulsory part of their academic program for the past two winters.

FRECKLES, AKRON WAR WORKER'S DOG, IS A HONEY AT RETRIEVING GOLF BALL

AKRON—Freckles, four-year-old Dalmatian belonging to Preston B. Bergin, war production drive administrator of a rubber company, is the best lost golf ball retriever extant.

Bergin, who lives only 50 yards from Akron's municipal course, was surprised when at the age of four months Freckles began bringing home a golf ball following her daily half-hour walk. He soon discovered lose balls. All Bergin has to say is "Find the ball, Freckles."

"We don't let her retrieve balls from the water," explains Bergin. "A couple of summers ago, on a short hole, I drove a ball into a lake which served as a hazard."

In Mother's Footsteps
"Freckles saw the ball splash and went after it. She got it all right, but it seems there were hundreds of balls submerged in the lake, and she brought up eight before she got the right one. She dogged her hear drowned herself, and she's too valuable a caddy to risk losing her that way."

Last spring Freckles had a litter, and neighbors and friends swamped Bergin with requests for a pup. He gave all away except one, which he calls Caddie.

None of the others inherited the mother's talent for nosing out lost golf balls. Most of them use them as teething rings. But Caddie has been going along with his mother on golf ball hunts and bids fair to emulate her as a lost-ball retriever. Just goes to show the mother influence.

Watt, called the inventor of the steam engine, did not invent it any more than Gutenberg, called the inventor of typography, invented type.

Freckles' record is 43 balls located in less than an hour.

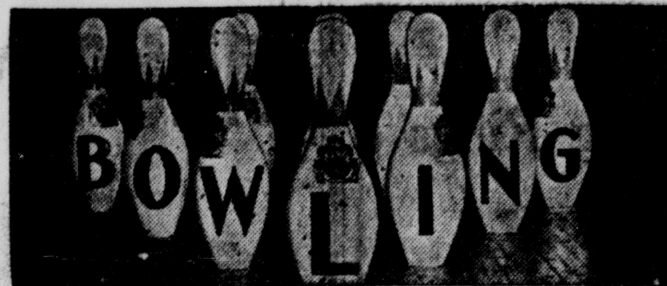

that on calm, warm days she could scent the enameled on a ball for a distance of 30 feet.

What with the golf ball and caddy scarcity, Bergin trained Freckles to confine retrieving to the rough, and it wasn't long before he had changed her from a pointer to a spotter.

Barks If Playable
Freckles knows golf now. When she finds a lost ball in the rough, she barks if it is a playable lie. Her judgment is infallible. She does not pick up the ball until it stops rolling, never chews one.

During the last three years, Freckles has recovered 3,000 of the now precious white pellets. Roaming alone in search of them, her record is 43 found in less than an hour. A fragment of dog biscuit is her reward for each recovery.

Besides her master, Freckles frequently assists other players who

"Freckles saw the ball splash and went after it. She got it all right, but it seems there were hundreds of balls submerged in the lake, and she brought up eight before she got the right one. She dogged and drowned herself, and she's too valuable a caddy to risk losing her that way."

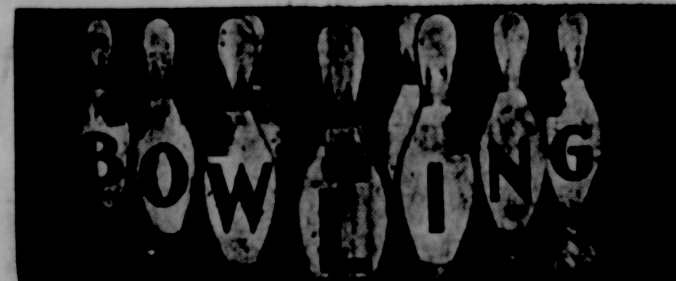

Last spring Freckles had a litter, and neighbors and friends swamped Bergin with requests for a pup. He gave all away except one, which he calls Caddie.

None of the others inherited the mother's talent for nosing out lost golf balls. Most of them use them as teething rings. But Caddie has been going along with his mother on golf ball hunts and bids fair to emulate her as a lost-ball retriever.

Just goes to show the mother influence.

Watt, called the inventor of the steam engine, did not invent it any more than Gutenberg, called the inventor of typography, invented type.

CHAPTER NINE

"Look, Sarah. Have you got any reason to believe that Mr. Bogarty would do harm to anybody? Or that the unpleasant Mr. Calder — my prospective father-in-law — would snatch up a sheath knife and disappear with it, after—say—poking it into somebody? If you have, I think you ought to tell me."

Sarah considered. "No."

"I can bank on that?"

"Well—plenty of people hated Jim. Even old John. Jim robbed him—virtually—and poor old John thinks I don't know it. There's a good deal of unforgotten injury and unrequited hate in every place that has been established for generations, and is as closely knit and as self-centered. But there's no definite reason—no." Aggie had risen. "Where are you going?"

"Out," he said. "As a matter of principle, I refrain from applying my undoubtedly immense analytical power to the problem of love triangles. Danielle versus Martha does not interest me. I don't know what Martha is like, but I'd say, off-hand, that this Bill was a fool not to have married Danielle, if he ever had the chance. I would have been excited. But I will saunter around until I can reduce your worries about Mr. Bogarty, the missing Westerner, and Mr. Calder, the missing man. They bother me a little. Telegram, knives in doors, people not showing up, people vanishing, knives vanishing—yeah, I'm going out."

Sarah smiled with relief and a certain small malice. "In the Plum blood stream," she said, "there's a gene of nosiness."

Aggie remembered the clubhouse foyer as accurately as he had the living room of Rainbow Lodge. Deer heads on the paneled walls mounted fishes. A prodigious fireplace. A desk—like the desk of a hotel. A mahogany, rustic hickory and birch, wicker and chintz. There were people sitting around in the foyer when he entered. Somebody was playing table tennis on the glassed-in porch. Waiters were serving luncheon to the early customers in the dining room beyond the archway.

Aggie walked to the desk, behind which stood a man of his own age, a powerfully built man with amiable features and eyes that were attentive and at the same time somber, as if he had resigned himself to living with an indelible disappointment. He regarded Aggie politely, although with a shadow of amusement at Aggie's oddity, and he asked, "What can I do for you, sir?"

The professor leaned across the desk, tugged at his Vandyke, and said, "Remember, Jack, when we sealed up the wasp nest with adhesive plaster and put it in Byron Wait's bureau drawer?"

The club manager stared uncomprehendingly.

"—or—the time you and I rigged up a bucket of water in the Patton bathhouse so it would spill on old man Patton — and then you went back in the dressing room for the hammer—and got the water yourself?"

Jack Browne gaped. "My Lord," he murmured. "You're not Aggie Plum? You can't be!"

"Then I've mistaken my own identity."

Jack gulped. "But—! Yeah—you've got the same color hair. It's that beard, maybe." He raised his voice, then, to a loud cry that turned the heads of the older people. "Aggie! You old scoundrel! Welcome home!"

Aggie chuckled. Jack started around from behind the desk. Three or four of the people in the room, hearing the name, hastened from their chairs to greet Aggie. He spent a few minutes talking with them—but, as soon as he could, he wandered away with Jack Browne. Aggie wanted to ask questions, but he listened diplomatically to Jack instead.

"I suppose it would hurt your feelings if I said you'd changed. I mean—from what we all thought you'd grow up to be like. You were energetic—and inventive—and cockeyed. Neurotic, they'd have called it. Now you look like old Professor Mosback. Hope it doesn't make you mad? You ought to shave off that beard for the summer. No kidding! We have a lot of fun here—summers. Winters—aren't so much fun. Sarah told you about me?"

"Sketchily." Jack sighed. "I spend too much time feeling sorry for myself. I had the bright years of college and a lot of Park Avenue—afterward. Then Dad's business blew up—and—"

"I know." Jack Browne forged ahead as if he could not stop himself—as if the circumstances kept running constantly through his mind. "Dad was one of the many who went out of a high Wall Street window in twenty-nine. It killed Mother—eventually. I was broke—and the times were tough then. Remember? I tried marrying rich girls—but I could only get engaged. I was seriously thinking of following in Dad's footsteps—when Sarah got me this job—and I've been up here ever since. Year round."

Groom Daniels As Presidential Aide

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—The White House is coaching Jonathan Daniels, former editor and author, as a successor to Presidential Secretary Stephen Early.

If the change is made, Daniels will handle President Roosevelt's press relations and Early will step into private employment.

Daniels is one of five administrative assistants to the chief executive. Before coming to the White House, he was assistant director of Civilian Defense. Early has been asked, and has agreed, to go to Supreme Allied headquarters in Europe to look over press relations there. He expects to be gone for weeks.

During his absence, Daniels will answer queries and issue statements for the press.

Early would like to give up the $10,000-a-year job as presidential secretary and take one or more of several private offers that would pay considerably more.

He won't discuss what field he might enter should the President free him. There have been reports, however, that both radio and motion pictures would be interested in his services. Before coming to the White House, he was with Paramount News.

Plan River Project

COLUMBUS, Jan. 26—Flood relief work for 250 miles of the Ohio river between a point east of Marietta to below Portsmouth will be handled by a new division of the U. S. Coast Guard auxiliary with headquarters here.

Ask Landlords Report All Changes of Tenancy

The OPA Rent Control division has instructed its field staff today to obtain better compliance with the provision requiring the filing by landlords of change-of-tenancy reports.

Samuel M. Noyes, acting area rent director, said a spot survey indicates a tendency to ignore the provision, one of the most essential of the regulations written to curb inflationary trends in rents. Many of the evasions, he said, are due to lack of knowledge of the regulations among landlords who have become property owners for the first time and are not familiar with all the requirements of rent control.

Change of Tenancy reports (Form D-25) must be filed by the landlord with the Area Rent office within five days after the change in tenancy, except in cases of hotels and rooming houses.

Landlords putting housing accommodations on the rental market for the first time must register this property with the area rent office at Wheeling, W. Va., within 30 days.
